Toyota Boshoku opens Kentucky office

COVINGTON, KY.

Toyota Boshoku America Inc. said Monday it will open its North American home office in Erlanger, Ky., as it seeks to win more corporate headquarters projects.

The manufacturer of automotive interior systems, which includes doors, seats and fabrics, received approval last month from the Kentucky Economic Development Finance Authority for a $2.1 million tax incentive to build its home office in northern Kentucky.

The company headquartered in Aichi, Japan said it plans hire 100 employees over the next two years for its Kentucky operations.

Gov. Ernie Fletcher and the Northern Kentucky Tri-County Economic Development Corp. welcomed the opening of Toyota Boshoku's home office.

Toyota Boshoku was formed in October 2004 with the merger of the former Toyoda Boshoku Corp., the automotive interiors division of Araco Corp. and Takanichi Co. Ltd.
